

Sabrina Bockler (b. 1987, USA) is a New York–based artist who received her BFA from Parsons School of Design in 2011. Bockler reimagines the domestic sphere through lush, surreal paintings that recall 17th-century Dutch still lifes. Her work draws from artists like Balthasar van der Ast and Rachel Ruysch, but adds a surreal, Lynchian twist that transforms familiar imagery into something both alluring and uncanny. With meticulous detail and painterly flair, Bockler explores the tension between abundance, beauty, and unease, creating decadent tableaux that both seduce and disturb.
